You Can't Push a Chain

A chain is a handy device. You use it to pull a car out of the ditch. You can hoist a heavy item. You can use one to anchor a boat or secure a gate.

But can't push with a chain. It will pull or hold but try to push and it's pretty much useless.

People are a lot like a chain. When linked together they can be powerful, if you pull them and don't try to push. You start pushing them and the links go every which way. Too many times we try to lead folks by just pushing them. We're in the back trying to get things moving and it rarely works well. All that shouting and cajoling and needling might move things an inch or two, but the bang for the buck is underwhelming.

If we stand at the front and start pulling, however, things change. Things snap into place. The effort is multiplied. The strength of the whole is unified.

In any role—parent, teacher, mentor, boss—that we want to help lead others, we would be a lot better off if we try pulling instead of pushing.

Trust

He holds the key to all unknown,
And I am glad;
If other hands should hold the key,
I might be sad.

What if tomorrow’s cares were here without its rest?
I’d rather He unlocked the day
And as it’s hours swung open,
say “My will is best.”

I cannot read His future plans,
But this I know,
I have the smiling of His face
And all the refuge of His grace
While here below.

Enough, this covers all my needs,
And so I rest
For what I cannot, He can see,
And in His love I e’er shall be Forever blest.
